TICKNOR & CO.'S

MEDICAL CATALOGUE.

BOSTON, 1847.

WILLIAM D. TICKNOR & CO.

Have just published a neat pocket edition of

RIGBY'S MEMORANDA FOR YOUNG PRACTITIONERS IN MIDWIFERY.

2nd American Edition, enlarged and improved. Price 25 Cents.

The American editor says: "The Obstetric Memoranda of Dr. Rigby, have been so eagerly sought for by Medical Students, that all the copies of the American Edition have long since been sold. To supply the constant demand for this work, the present publishers issue a second edition. Conscious that the principal object of the author would be counteracted by materially increasing the size of the volume, the editor has enclosed in brackets such additions only as seemed absolutely necessary."

"One of the neatest things of the day has been sent abroad by Messrs. Ticknor & Co., of this city, entitled 'Memoranda for Young Practitioners in Midwifery, by Edward Rigby, second American Edition, enlarged and improved.' With all its enlargements, it is but a small 18mo still. But Lilliputian as it is in its dimensions, there are sixty-two closely printed pages of excellent matter, which gives correct information in the fewest words. We opine that a series of such miniature treatises, embracing medicine and surgery, that might be carried without inconvenience in a fob, would not only sell readily, but also be very much prized." Boston Medical and Surgical Journal.

TREMONT STREET MEDICAL SCHOOL.

THIS Institution is intended to provide the student with a complete course of instruction in the various departments of his profession. For this purpose, the following arrangements have been made:

Regular exercises, consisting of recitations or lectures, will be given daily, by the Instructors of the School, in the different branches, as follows:

THEORY AND PRACTICE, AND MATERIA MEDICA, Dr. BIGELOW.
MIDWIFERY, DISEASES OF WOMEN AND CHILDREN, AND MEDICAL JURISPRUDENCE,.....Dr. STORER.

ANATOMY AND PHYSIOLOGY,.....Dr. HOLMES.
PATHOLOGICAL ANATOMY,.....Dr. J. B. S. JACKSON.
SURGERY AND CHEMISTRY,.....Dr. H. J. BIGELOW.

---

CLINICAL MEDICINE AT THE MASSACHUSETTS

GENERAL HOSPITAL, by....Drs. BIGELOW, JACKSON, and HOLMES.
CLINICAL SURGERY AT THE SAME INSTITUTION,

by.....Dr. HENRY J. BIGELOW.

---

Students will have admission, also, to the EYE AND EAR INFIRMARY.

The school-room, at No. 34 Tremont Street, is furnished with a cabinet of anatomical preparations and plates, and a collection of the principal articles of the Materia Medica, and is supplied with some of the best periodical publications relating to medical science. It is warmed and lighted, and open to the students day and evening.

The means for the pursuit of practical anatomy are procured without any expense to the student, and convenient accommodations provided for those who are so engaged.

TREMONT STREET MEDICAL SCHOOL.

A lecture or recitation is given daily, from the first of March to the first of November, excepting during the month of August, when the recitations are suspended. During the four months of the lectures at the Massachusetts Medical College, three examinations will be held weekly.

In addition to these exercises, the Instructors have procured, and will continue to procure the services of gentlemen distinguished in different departments of science, in order to render their course of education more complete, and to vary its character from year to year. The following gentlemen have promised lectures in the course of the present season:

Prof. AGASSIZ, on..... EMBRYOLOGY.

Prof. WYMAN, on..... COMPARATIVE ANATOMY.

Dr. GORDON, on..... DISEASES OF THE SKIN.

Lectures will also be given by the Teachers upon special subjects connected with their several departments, and particularly requiring illustration. During the past and present seasons, lectures have been given by Dr. Charles T. Jackson, on Chemistry; by Dr. Bethune, on Diseases of the Eye; by Dr. Storer, on Diseases of Children, and on Medical Jurisprudence; by Dr. Jackson on Pathological Anatomy, and by Dr. Holmes on Microscopic Anatomy.

The lectures of Dr. Jackson are illustrated by recent specimens, and the extensive cabinet, of which he is Curator. Those of Dr. Holmes are essentially demonstrative; the student being taught the use of the instrument, and the characters of the most interesting microscopic objects, by the aid of three achromatic microscopes, of different construction, and embracing a wide range of powers.

Further particulars may be learned from the "Catalogue of the Past and Present Students of the Tremont Street Medical School, with an Account of its Origin and Plan of Instruction, Boston, 1847," which may be obtained at Messrs. Ticknor & Company's Book-store.

TERMS—One hundred dollars a year. For admission, apply to Dr. Bigelow, Summer Street, or either of the other Instructors.

UNIVERSITY OF MARYLAND.

BALTIMORE, MD.

The Annual Medical Session will commence on Monday, Oct. 25th, 1847, and continue till the 1st of March.

OBSTETRICS, . . . . .	Prof. R. W. HALL, M. D.
CHEMISTRY, . . . . .	Prof. W. E. A. AIKIN, M. D.
SURGERY, . . . . .	Prof. N. R. SMITH, M. D.
MATERIA MEDICA, . . . . .	Prof. SAMUEL CHEW, M. D.
ANATOMY, . . . . .	Prof. JOSEPH ROBY, M. D.
THEORY & PRACTICE OF PHYSIC,	Prof. W. POWER, M. D.
DEMONSTRATOR OF ANATOMY,	G. W. MILTENBERGER, M. D.

The means necessary for giving a complete course of public lectures are ample, and it is believed, efficiently employed. For purposes of clinical teaching the school has under its control the Baltimore Infirmary in the immediate neighborhood of the Medical College. Students, desirous of prosecuting the study of Anatomy, will find the advantages absolutely unrivalled for abundance and cheapness. The rooms are open on the 1st of October, under the direction of an accomplished Demonstrator, and remain open till the close of the session. The expenses of living in Baltimore are as low as in any Atlantic city; good board being obtainable at from $3.00 to $4.00 per week.

Fees for the course, $90. Dissecting ticket, $10. Students who have attended one course of lectures in any recognized Medical School and one course in this Institution, may present themselves as candidates for graduation. Graduation fee twenty dollars.

A VALUABLE WORK.

W A L S H E:

THE ANATOMY, PHYSIOLOGY, AND TREATMENT OF CANCER,

WITH ADDITIONS BY J. MASON WARREN, M. D.

1 vol. 12mo. Price $1.50.

"There have been no works extant, precisely satisfactory, on the management of Cancer. A strange kind of mixing up of many things, without that exact order and critical analysis which are always necessary in a special guide to practice, is plainly discoverable in the essays and chapters interspersed through the books. That no great advances have been made in the treatment, for some centuries, is inferred from the fact that the mortality by it in all civilized countries, from whence statistics have been collected, has been uniform, and apparently unchecked.

In the midst of this state of things, a volume has been republished in Boston, by Messrs. Ticknor & Co., that raises the expectations of the reader to hope that a new system of exploration has finally led to a scientific course of medication in Cancer; and that it may yet in some measure be brought under the control of remedies, like other disturbing causes of health. This work is not unknown in this country, by any means; but it has not been placed within the reach of all practitioners, till now. Its author is Walter Hayle Walshe, M. D., of the London University. Essential additions are made to it by Dr. J. M. Warren, to the extent of about fifty pages. No one can properly appreciate the importance of the American editor's remarks, without following the text. It becomes apparent, in that way, that we have been provided with a desirable and valuable treatise on the subject.

The volume is divided into two parts. The first embraces the anatomy, physiology, pathology, and treatment. The second treats of Cancer of particular parts — as the skin, cellular tissue, muscles, glands, bones, meninges, lips, tongue, tonsils, nares, sinuses, genital organs, ear, eye, &c. &c., illustrated by two lithographic and several wood engravings. We repeat, it is a desirable book to have. The price is only one dollar and fifty cents, and therefore within the means of all."—Boston Medical and Surgical Journal.

"This work affords what has long been a desideratum to the Medical profession, as the vagueness with which the term 'Cancer' has been applied has often given rise to extremely incorrect statements with regard to the results of excision, and of the application of various remedies; so that many articles have obtained a temporary reputation which were either inert, or positively injurious."—Daily Advertiser.
